

Nikon Captures Training Success Through Lorman's Learning Platform

INDUSTRY
Manufacturing

COMPANY
Nikon Precision Inc.

Nikon Precision Inc. (NPI) is a wholly owned subsidiary of Nikon Corporation, responsible for sales, service, and customer support of Nikon photolithography systems used in the semiconductor manufacturing industry.

Why Lorman?

- + Quality content
- + Professional continuing education credits
- + Superior customer service

CHALLENGE

Find a reliable source of on-demand and live online courses for non-technical employees

Prior to partnering with Lorman, each employee was encouraged to find training on their own with limited content providers. In-person courses made filling the 16-hour training requirement a hurdle, and production was lost with employees out of the office for training.

SOLUTION

Access to convenient, quality content with Lorman's Learning Platform

Lorman's Learning Platform provided convenient access to quality content. Available 24/7, live virtual and on-demand courses enabled a flexible learning environment compatible with employees' work styles and schedules. With a comprehensive library of over 13,000 training products and new courses added monthly, Nikon employees were easily able to fulfill their training hours. The platform's focus on compliance, with courses specific to professional and continuing education credits, also satisfied certification training requirements, including HR, legal, finance, and payroll credits.

LEARNING PLATFORM

"Lorman Educational Services has become a trusted partner supporting my organization's training needs, particularly for those requiring credits. Many in my organization prefer Lorman to other content providers. Their support staff is top-notch, responsive, and helpful."

RESULT

Employees meet training requirements and stay compliant with professional credits

NPI challenges all employees to complete a minimum of 16 hours of job-related training. Lorman has enabled many to take advantage of quality content while fulfilling the 16-hour requirement. Additionally, because Lorman offers professional credits, it has made the process of meeting credit requirements easier for many of our employees.
